market to-day was narrow and very little speculative interest was evident, market to-day was narrow and very little speculative interest was evident, a condition regarded with some satisfaction by the banking and large financial interests, which foresaw danger of evil after effects from the violent turmoil of the late speculation.

The coming three-days' closed interval, from Friday evening to the following Tuesday morning, emphasized the tendency to quietude in the market. The approach of such a period usually prompts an abstention from important new commitments and also a reduction of contracts already outstanding. It was to this cause that the advancing tendency of prices was attributed to a large extent, as it is supposed that a remnant of the short interest built up on the recent break in prices still remains to be covered.

News of the day had little influence on the trading. An abindance of testimony to the vital improvement going on in the from and steel trade was contained in the reports of active demand for iron and for practically all grades of the finished product. These are the conditions foreseen by the confident hyers of United States Steel up to a price far above any previous record, while the general observer failed to detect the evidence of industrial revival and maintained a skeptical view of the professed faith of the traders. Not the current trade returns, but the prospects for the future must be sought in the price fluctuations of securities and these doubtless played their part in the rise in the price of United States Sieel to-day to a point within a small fraction of its highest record figures.

On Foreign Exchanges

LONDON, September 2.—The supplies

LONDON, September 2.—The supplies of money were increased on the market to-day on dividend disbursements and discounts were easy in sympathy. Trading on the Stock Exchange was factive and uninteresting. American securities slackened in view of the approaching holiday in the United States. The prospects for cheap money helped glitedged securities, while Paris support strengthened foreigners; otherwise values were little changed. American securities opened quiet and about unchanged. During the rest holy of trading prices advanced fractionally and at noon the market was steady and from 1-8 to 3-4 higher than of trading prices advanced fractionally and at noon the market was steady and from 1-8 to 3-4 higher than doubt of trading prices advanced fractionally and at noon the market was steady and from 1-8 to 3-4 higher than doubt of trading prices advanced fractionally and at noon the market was steady and from 1-8 to 3-4 higher than drunted States Steel received most attention in the forenoon, the latter benefiting on August output. Values barely moved in the afternoon until Wall Street bought. This caused a hardening. Later the support slackened and the market closed dull.

For Boys and Girls

An allowance produces a feeling of independence and teaches children the proper care of money. But it is well to stipulate that at least one-half be saved. It is never too early to start the habit. An account may be opened with one dollar or more.
